

What is Transition Truro?

Transition Truro is part of a community-led process that many towns and villages across the world are adopting to help their local communities become stronger, fairer, more sustainable and happier. These communities have started up projects in areas of local food production, sustainable transport, renewable energy, clean air and biodiversity, education, housing, waste and resources, social justice, health and wellbeing and arts as small-scale local responses to the global challenges of climate change, environmental damage, economic hardship and shrinking supplies of cheap energy. Together, these responses make up something much bigger, and help show the way forward for governments, business and the rest of us.

Our group was set up in 2007. It exists to raise awareness and to set up practical projects, often in partnership with other local organisations.

It's the opposite of us sitting in our armchairs complaining about what's wrong, and instead, it's about getting up and doing something constructive about it alongside our neighbours and fellow residents. And people say that as a result of being involved in their local "transition initiative", they're happier, their community feels more robust and they have made a lot of new friends.

For more information:

info@transitiontruro.org.uk

www.transitiontruro.org.uk

Facebook and Twitter links on the website.

Helping to build a resilient community that's both planet and people friendly

